

NURS738 : Research Methods

This course provides a broad framework for research methods in healthcare fields. Students will examine basic research designs, measurement tools, and research ethics. Students will develop proficiency at applying the principles to published healthcare research. The course emphasizes quantitative designs and methods and provides an introduction to qualitative methods.

Credits 3